LEXIS RUBENIS

Lexis is a local artist and teacher with eleven years experience working with acrylic paint and technical pens. He has studied drawing at the Academy of Art in San Francisco and has directed outdoor acrylic murals on the Peninsula. His artwork has been exhibited extensively in California Bay Area venues including the Toomey-Tourell Gallery in San Francisco and the Elizabeth Norton Gallery in Palo Alto.

Having accumulated eight years experience working for fine art supply stores such as Accent Arts and Palace, Lexis has in depth knowledge of art media and tools. His passion for acrylic painting has inspired him to focus on this particular medium's versatility and the potentials it offers to modern painting and composition.

Acrylic Basics

Acrrylic Basics is a class that will provide beginners with a formal introduction into acrylic painting. For people who have used acrylics in the past this class offers a refreshing perspective with new techniques and color use. This four part class will focus on a different element of acrylic paint each week: acrylic science, acrylic technique, color use, and lastly, color technique. Students will have a chance to walk through the background of acrylic paint and learn how to use it with understanding.

There will be demos and hands on activities in each class relating to the topic being explored, much of which will be revisited once the paint has dried. In Acrylic Basics the goal is to help the student paint with an emphasis on process, an essential aspect for all acrylic painters.

Tips on how to use acrylic mediums, tools and their maintenance, choosing and using colors, and how to mix and layer color will be provided throughout the course. A thorough understanding of the basic nature of acrylic pigments and mediums will help you paint with confidence, and make your colors sing!
